Early identification and evidence-based intervention are necessary and effective steps in reducing the impact of psychosis on affected youth, their families and our community. Placer County has identified a need for these early psychosis and treatment services. The University of California, Davis operates an Early Diagnosis and Preventative Treatment (EDAPT) program. UC Davis EDAPT is a nationally recognized leading provider of early psychosis care. The EDAPT Clinic serves individuals from around the Sacramento region, ages 12-40, who have insurance and are in the early stages of psychosis. The services are provided as coordinated specialty care (CSC) in an outpatient setting that incorporates targeted medication management, individual, family and group psychosocial interventions, case management services, and supported education and employment with the goals of early diagnosis, treatment, and disability prevention.

FISCAL IMPACT

The expenditures of $7,655 are included in the Department's FY 2018-19 and FY 2019-20 Budgets. They are 100% funded through Mental Health Services Act (MHSA) State dollars with no General Fund match required.
