

To anyone who has had suicidal thoughts,

We're glad you're still here.

We'd like to help.

Our Treatment Approach

Mental health crises can happen to anyone.

Our team uses a “whatever it takes, however long it takes” approach to make sure that people receive the right services when in crisis, so that they, their families and their community are safe.

Each service is tailored to fit the individual in crisis, their immediate needs, and treatment decisions are always a collaborative effort.

Our goal is to help people remain safely in the community, surrounded by their support network, and we only consider hospitalization if necessary.
